hereby empowered by the undersigned client to send, receive, process or forward data regarding the aforementioned matter by e-mail.

The client is aware that data sent by e-mail, after having been transmitted from the server of the law firm to the mail server of the Internet Service Provider (ISP) used by the law firm as necessary to forward an e-mail, are no longer under the control of the person forwarding the data and, therefore, no liability can be assumed for the prevailing risks, in particular for the possible access of unauthorized third parties to these data and the resulting breach of telecommunications secrecy and the client-attorney privilege.

Moreover, the client acknowledges the fact that, owing to technical risks associated with transfer without prior direct notification, no guarantee can be given for the receipt of the e-mail or for the reading and processing thereof.

The client may revoke this declaration of consent at all times in writing and it automatically ceases to be legally valid on termination of the specific matter. The consent applies exclusively to the aforementioned case and does not apply to any other case pending.
